Club News:

Guest Speaker Austin Redden talking about Breathe Easy Revegetation Projects.

Breathe Easy Revegetation Projects is an environmental initiative dedicated to protecting and enhancing South Australia's native bushland. Founded by South Australians Gerry Bain and Austin Redden, the organisation focuses on community engagement and ecological restoration.

Since 2022, Breathe Easy has completed six major projects across regions including Middleton, Kangaroo Island, the Adelaide Hills, and Corny Point. These projects involve large-scale revegetation efforts, where indigenous plants are carefully selected to restore the land to its original state.

A key aspect of their work is coordinating community planting days, which bring together young people and local businesses to make positive environmental changes. These events not only contribute to ecological restoration but also offer businesses the opportunity to offset their environmental impacts.

In March 2023, Breathe Easy Revegetation Projects initiated the Pamoja Project in Tanzania, East Africa. The term "Pamoja" translates to "together" in Swahili, reflecting the project's emphasis on collaboration. Founders Gerry Bain and Aussie Redden spent over five weeks in the Manyara and Arusha regions, engaging with local communities to promote sustainable farming and land restoration practices.

During their stay, they collaborated with local farmer and mountain guide, Oscar Kikoti, assisting on his farm in Manyara. Their efforts included planting trees to delineate farming areas and protect crops from wildlife. This hands-on experience provided insights into the challenges and opportunities in Tanzanian agriculture.

Additionally, Gerry and Aussie connected with Mtokijani Foundation, an environmental NGO based in Arusha. Mtokijani focuses on community-driven environmental initiatives such as tree planting, establishing native and fruit tree nurseries, river clean-ups, and aquaponics research. This partnership aims to foster knowledge exchange and strengthen environmental conservation efforts across continents.

The Pamoja Project exemplifies Breathe Easy's commitment to global environmental stewardship, emphasising the importance of cross-cultural collaboration in addressing ecological challenges. By working together with Tanzanian communities, they aim to create sustainable solutions that benefit both people and the planet.

Through these initiatives, Breathe Easy has recruited hundreds of volunteers, many of whom had no prior experience in environmental action, fostering a strong, resilient community dedicated to land care and climate justice.

Uncle Steve presenting his nephew Austin Redden a gift for his excellent presentation
